Most NATO Allies Have Reservations Over Ford's Unity Plea

BRUSSELS (UPI) — NATO allies today answered President Ford's call to unity with warnings that economic hardship and other special circumstances will still limit their military commitments to the alliance.

Portugal also declared its intention to stay in NATO in spite of allied suspicions it is leaning toward heavy Communist influence.

Premier Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves said Portugal's NATO membership would not conflict with a growing friendship with East European Communist nations and asked the allies for "more comprehension and less apprehension."

One by one, France, Britain, West Germany and other nations gave Ford the message at the final summit talks in NATO headquarters, where the President Thursday tried to breathe new fire into the faltering alliance.

Ford renewed America's pledge of allegiance to NATO, promised its military forces would remain on station there until the Soviets agree to mutual troop reductions and urged the other 14 NATO allies to back the alliance with "unqualified participation."

In their speeches today, the other government leaders restated the doubts and reservations their nations have long held toward the NATO alliance.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said his nation has no intention of reintegrating its military forces under overall NATO command despite Ford's implied criticism of part-time allies. France withdrew from NATO's military arm in the 1960s while remaining within its political councils. Sauvagnargues said France considers itself a full alliance partner, but doubts that NATO in its current form is a proper forum for solving major world problems.

West Germany's Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said it would be difficult for the alliance to pay for its own defense during a period of economic recession and inflation.

Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson agreed with that and said it would be "unrealistic" to expect NATO could manage an overall increase in defense spending under current economic conditions. NATO defense ministers agreed last week to just such an increase, but Wilson said better and more specialized arms—not higher budgets—are the answer.

Turkey's Premier Suleyman Demirel said his nation was "willing and determined" to try to solve differences with Greece over Cyprus by peaceful means, as Ford urged Thursday in talks with Demirel and the Greek prime minister.

Demirel also leveled his criticism of the congressional arms embargo in remarks prepared for delivery to the summit session.

Ford, who departs for Madrid Saturday on the second-leg of his week-long European tour, began the day at a working breakfast with Wilson at the U.S. embassy residence.

Then he attended the final round of summit consultations at NATO headquarters, where he delivered the keynote address on Thursday.

"The United States of America unconditionally and unequivocally remains true" to its NATO commitments, Ford said, and urges "unqualified participation" from the other allies as well.

The concluding summit meetings were scheduled to run more than five hours in two segments, with a one hour break for a luncheon among NATO summit leaders in between.

Ford spent Thursday in bilateral meetings and an opening NATO session, grappling with such problems as the Greek-Turkish rift over Cyprus, the leftward drift of the new revolutionary government in Portugal and, above all, the credibility of U.S. commitments after the loss of Indochina.

He gave NATO leaders what they wanted to hear—a promise that the United States will not withdraw any of the 310,000 troops it maintains in Europe unless it can negotiate mutual withdrawals with the Communist Warsaw Pact. He said America will carry out its treaty commitment to defend any NATO member that comes under armed attack.

At the same time, Ford made clear that he expects other NATO members that have been wavering in their fidelity to the alliance to give all-out support too.

"We must preserve the quality and integrity of this alliance on the basis of unqualified participation, not on the basis of partial membership or special arrangements," Ford said in a speech to the NATO gathering. A commitment to collective defense, he said, "must be unqualified if it is to be reliable."

Rondout Board: The Next Step?

By Jon Powers

KYSERIKE

When less than 47 percent of the registered voters in the Rondout Valley Central School District turned out three weeks ago to reject the proposed $6,720,548 budget for 1975-76, Board of Education president Wayne Kelder said he didn't think the turnout was a true cross-representation of the district.

On Thursday, the board resubmitted the same budget to the voters, and Kelder got the turnout he wanted. But with 64 percent of the district's registered voters casting ballots, the budget was rejected by an even wider margin.

"We got what we wanted," said Kelder, "a cross-representation of the voting populace. And the people have indicated that they don't like the budget we submitted."

Voter turnout Thursday was 1,620. The budget was rejected by an 80-723 margin. Two propositions also went down to defeat: a proposal to authorize the board to spend $18,500 each on two 66-passenger school buses was rejected, 962-640; authorization of an additional $1,500 toward the purchase of a 15-passenger school bus was rejected, 948-654.

After the ballots were counted Thursday, the school board met in an executive session to discuss the results. "We discussed our alternatives—and we have many—and we decided to meet at a later date to decide exactly what we will do," said Kelder, "the board reached no decision Thursday night."

Kelder offering some personal thoughts on the proposed budget, said he believes it is a victim of "current economic situations."

"When the economy started to change in the 1960's," he said, "we got into a situation where the school began to provide more services because the home wasn't. We gave the students a full meal at lunchtime, transportation home after activities and greater attention to the unfortunate children, the slow learners. Maybe the people are saying that we can't afford these things now."

Kelder noted that the current proposed budget is trimmable. "It would be foolish for us to say that a budget between six and seven million dollars can't be cut. But if we cut money, we cut the curriculum. Any substantial amount of money eliminated from this budget will mean that certain programs at the school will have to go."

Kelder noted that a recent study of the proposed budget revealed that it could be cut by a maximum of some $200,000. "If we went to an austerity budget—and I'm not saying we will—the most we could cut out is between $190,000 and $200,000 (the rest, he said, is mandated by the state and the district's own contractual commitments). But if we cut that much, many things will have to go: extracurricular activities, cafeteria services, busing. In the long run, it's the kids who will be hurt."

"We thought that we had a good budget," he added, "one that would provide a quality education for this community. With economic conditions the way they are, that may not be what the people want."

There are, apparently, a number of areas where the proposed budget can be trimmed. After the first rejection by voters on May 7, board member Ernest Quick suggested that after-school busing and library expenses be reduced; some cafeteria workers, guidance counselors, principals, substitute teachers and aides be eliminated; field trips be discontinued; employe cafeteria prices be raised and all new programs be banned "for the interim."

But precisely what action the board decides upon won't be known until that as-yet-unscheduled meeting is held.

The proposed budget is $555,586 higher than the 1974-75 budget approved 615-526 by voters last year. Between 1973-74 and 1974-75, the budget jumped by another $569,933. In three years, the Rondout Valley budget has increased more than $1.1 million.

With those figures apparently in mind, district voters Thursday left little doubt that they won't tolerate similar increases in the future. Sentiment against the budget proposal and the two propositions was stronger Thursday than three weeks ago.

City Going in Hole on Street Program

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig budgeted $49,080 for the 1975 "street program"—the major repair of city thoroughfares. But that may be just a down payment.

The Common Council meets Tuesday night with spending requests for not only Koenig's $49,080 but for an additional $149,832 arrived at after consultations between the mayor and the aldermen. In fact, the entire street program is a joint effort by the mayor and the Council. This year's is a record and will require the floating of a bond issue if it is to be carried out in its entirety.

Tops on the list is an estimated $48,745 for a stretch of Mary's Avenue from Pine Grove Avenue to Andrew Street.

Next is a $33,856 item for Linderman Avenue from Washington Avenue to Becket Street. After that there's $28,765 for First Avenue from Delaware Avenue to Larch Street and then $20,150 for Downs Street from Foxhall Avenue to Ten Broeck Avenue and $16,879 for Wilson Avenue from Colfax to Kiersted Avenue.

The latter job is part of the 1975 budget as are work on Main Street from Fair to Wall ($13,875), Tompkins (its entirety) ($10,280) and East Chester Street from Hasbrouck Avenue to Hemlock ($8,046).

Rounding out the "to be appropriated" section is Ten Broeck Avenue from Grand Street to Cornell at a cost of $14,796.

Koenig, in his message to the Council asking for the entire $198,912, notes that labor is up seven percent this year, paving costs are up 62.5 percent, masonry and materials are up 25 percent and chemicals and automotive parts are up 23 percent.

While on the subject of streets, the mayor, noting the success of the planing of Broadway last year, wants the aldermen to consider similar operations on East Chester Street from Hemlock to Flatbush Avenue and Foxhall Avenue from Grand to Flatbush.

Koenig seeks approval to draw specifics for the advertising of bids on the work.

The aldermen have a few other high priced items to consider when they meet in regular session Tuesday night at 7:30.

The urban renewal agency informs the Council that it has accepted a bid of $330,317 from Ayvee Construction of Poughkeepsie for street work in the uptown project to conform with the rest of the Pike Plan motif in the area. Plans call for the laying of new sidewalks, new blue stone curbing, trees and street lamps. Since John Street is a border street for urban renewal the city will have to pay half the cost for that street. The cost is $97,204.

Also on tap is approval for the hiring of consulting engineers for what will be the first project undertaken with the new Community Development Agency: $112,500 for water lines in what is commonly known as "the Washington Avenue loop." The water department not content to wait until the new CDA gets going—federal approval of the funds came in March—wants to carry out the waterline work this summer.

The mayor is also submitting to the Council for its study a plan to consolidate parking on North Front Street between city lots and those owned by the school district along with a small parcel of land owned by the urban renewal agency.

Just down the street lies the Tremper House where $45,000 was spent for restoration of its exterior but not a cent has been raised for its interior restoration. The mayor writes the Council asking them to study that matter, suggesting that perhaps the building could be sold for either office or residential use.

There are two requests to address the Council: one from Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st) and one from the Landmarks Preservation Commission on the old city hall. Hinchey's topic is not listed.

Prior to the regular meeting, at 7 p.m. Tuesday, the aldermen will hold a public hearing on two requests from the urban renewal agency on redevelopers. Hurley Realty wants to build a shopping plaza in Broadway East. Murray Colow wants to acquire and rehabilitate two properties on Green Street at the corner of Lucas Avenue.

MAYOR BEAME

(UPI)

Beame May Fire 37,315 More

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame has proposed firing another 37,315 workers under an $11.8 billion "crisis" budget that will drastically slash all areas of city services.

Beame said the dismissals will go into effect July 1 if $641 million needed to close a gap in the fiscal year beginning that day is not found.

Beame presented the latest 1975-76 budget Thursday at an unprecedented joint session of the City Council and Board of Estimate televised live from City Hall.

"The fact that I must submit to the City Council and the Board of Estimate a crisis budget presents a humiliating prospect for this great city," he told more than 400 persons in the ornate chamber. He blamed Republicans in Albany and Washington, major banks and "roaring headlines and hand-wringing editorials" for the city's plight.

He called for a congressional investigation of "the financial shenanigans which are threatening the very foundation of this city" after banks refused to buy more city bonds.

The budget is $3.3 million less than the current expense budget and would reduce drastically all areas of city services, including police and fire, virtually eliminate recreation and many education programs and cut health and hospital care. Beame had already scheduled several thousand dismissals before the additional cutbacks Thursday.

The "crisis budget" is about $641 million less than the "austerity budget" Beame drafted last month.

He had proposed increases in state aid and $434-million in new taxes to balance his budget. However, the tax package, which requires state legislative approval, was rejected flatly by the Senate Republicans, led by Majority Leader Warren Anderson.

After Beame's speech, labor leaders in an adjacent room used such expressions as "incomprehensible," "disastrous" and "unbelievable" to describe the announcement of the layoffs.

City Council Majority Leader Thomas Cuite, a Democrat, called the budget "horrifying" but "responsible". He said, "Anyone who doesn't stand by the Mayor in his struggle to avoid these mass layoffs, I would consider a traitor in the classical sense."

'It's Really A Good Deal For Taxpayer'

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — John S. Dyson, the state's agriculture commissioner, defends his use of a chauffeur-driven state car to commute 80 miles one-way to work as a means to get the most out of a "top level" state official.

Dyson, with taxpayers picking up all the expense, is chauffeured from his family farm in Millbrook, 80 miles down the Hudson Valley, to his Albany office and back at the end of his working day.

Dyson says he uses the chauffeur service "two or three days a week," but claims the practice is a means to get the "most efficient production" out of "a top level state official who is paid at the rate of $24 an hour."

His driver lives in the Albany suburb of Mechanicville and must drive the 1974 Dodge assigned to Dyson—which gets about 10 miles per gallon of gasoline—a total of about 320 miles for each round trip the commissioner makes.

Dyson told a reporter when asked about his commuting practices, "If they would feel any better about it, I'll pay for the gas."

Dyson, named by Gov. Hugh L. Carey at the end of February and confirmed by the Senate a month ago, said he hasn't rented an apartment in Albany because, "I cannot afford to maintain three homes at once."

He said he is trying to sell a co-op apartment he maintains in Manhattan.

He is the owner of a chain of weekly newspapers; describes himself as "a person of independent means," and is paid $48,000 a year as commissioner.

"It's very nice for people to stand around and take pot shots," he said, "but it's mighty hard to find qualified people to take government posts."

JOHN DYSON

"If newspapers take this kind of irresponsible pot shots at public servants, we aren't going to get anyone to go into public service," he said.

"The thing of having a driver is to make commissioners more efficient," he said. While traveling the two hours a day to and from his office, he said, he works in the back seat of his chauffeur-driven vehicle.

"When I do get my own place in Albany, I will drive my own car," he said.

"It's really a good deal for the taxpayer; otherwise they would be losing the services of a $48,000 executive for two hours a day," he said. He calculated that, working a 40 hour week, "that means I'm paid at the rate of $24 an hour."

He said since he was named commissioner, "I have been working about 14 hours a day, seven days a week."

Gilman Joins Galesville Effort

WASHINGTON — Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) has joined local veterans organizations in an effort to have the 650-acre Galesville Airport in Shawangunk established as a national cemetery.

The State American Legion, along with several other veterans groups has been on record for the past five years in favor of a national veterans cemetery at Galesville.

The property is owned by the federal government but has not been used as an airport for the last 15 years. Plans were announced ten years ago for an industrial park at that site but never materialized.

In response to Congressman Gilman's recent inquiry, Richard L. Roudebush, administrator of the VA, stated that the VA is pursuing plans to locate at least one national cemetery in each of ten federal regions, and requested Gilman to suggest a site of approximately 500 acres.

Gilman has proposed the site of the inactive Galesville Airport in Shawangunk. He noted the land is federally-owned, over 650 acres, well drained, served by good county roads, and scenically pleasant.

Congressman Gilman has been urging the Veterans Administration to locate a national cemetery in the 26th District because the present national cemeteries pose inconvenient travel problems to the families of veterans buried there.

"Our national cemeteries are a valuable resource that should be available to everyone," Gilman said. "For this reason, I believe they ought to be located throughout the country, in areas easily accessible to the families who want to visit them. Our region, especially, should have a memorial cemetery because of its proximity to the heavily populated New York Metropolitan region."

Roudebush said the VA is examining a number of sites in New York for the cemetery but that no final selection has yet been made. Gilman has invited veterans organizations in the 26th District to suggest other possible local sites for a national cemetery.

Economic Indicators Show Long Recession Is Just About Over

By United Press International

The long and brutal recession is just about over. The Commerce Department's composite index of leading economic indicators showed that economic activity soared at a record rate last month and other gains were apparent in indicators since April.

This is the strongest evidence to date that the economic slump, which has run for 19 months and taken a heavy toll in jobs, incomes and profits, has bottomed out.

"The size and breadth of the ... increases in the leading indicators is encouraging and consistent with other evidences suggesting that recession has reached bottom," said James Pate, Commerce's chief economist.

Pate's forecast is one of the most optimistic to date by a government economist. Ford administration economists, having misjudged the depth of the recession last year, have been cautious in predicting an upturn.

Secretary of Treasury William Simon also was optimistic in remarks at a meeting in Paris of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

"From all indications," Simon said, "the U.S. economy is now at or past the bottom of its recession."

Simon and finance ministers from 23 other industrialized nations agreed at the close of their two-day meeting to stimulate their sagging economies. A year ago they took the opposite position, agreeing to dampen their economies to slow inflation by in effect creating a recession.

The bright projections for an upturn in the U.S. economy was based on the Commerce Department's newly revised index of 12 leading economic indicators which showed a 4.2 percent rise in April, the biggest gain since the government began keeping such records in 1948.

The new index, revised to take into account higher prices, also showed a 1 percent increase in March, marking the first upturn in overall economic activity in 11 months.

However, most economists date the beginning of the recession from November, 1973, which makes it the longest and most severe since the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Other government reports provided evidence that the March-April upturn has continued into May.

Commerce said retail sales rose 1. percent last week, the fifth weekly increase in a row. And in New York, the Federal Reserve said the nation's money supply jumped 8.2 percent to average $288.4 billion over the last four weeks.

An increase in the amount of cash on hand and in checking accounts is necessary to boost spending by consumers and businesses. Until the last two months, the money supply was decreasing or remaining stable.

$10 Billion Yearly Is Cost of Drug Abuse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Heroin addiction and other drug abuse cost Americans between $10 billion and $17 billion annually and are linked to 15,000 deaths a year, a cabinet-level report to President Ford said today.

The report also said criminal penalties for marijuana possession have not discouraged "pot" use, but, in fact, "resulted in social damage."

The report by the President's Strategy Council on Drug Abuse, suggested drug treatment be considered as part of any future national health insurance plan.

It said the biggest drain on the economy from drug abuse was in crimes committed to produce income supporting heroin addiction.

"This type of crime is increasing in 1975 in nearly all states and accounts for about two-thirds of all measurable drug abuse costs," the report told Ford.

Estimates of annual costs included $6.3 billion from property loss due to drug-related crime; $200 million for treatment and other health care of persons with drug problems; $620 million for criminal justice system costs, "with over half ... related to marijuana;" $1.5 billion for loss of earnings from drug-related deaths, job absence and lost productivity; and $1.1 billion for operating drug abuse programs.

The $10 billion estimate is conservative and could run as high as $17 billion, the report said. "Unless our programs in prevention, treatment and supply reduction can reverse the upward trend in drug abuse, the cost will rise even further," it warned. More than 15,000 people a year now lose their lives in drug-implicated circumstances.

Punishment of marijuana users overshadowed recognition of marijuana as a social problem and failed to deter its use among millions of Americans, the report said.

"Instead, it resulted in damage to many young people by saddling them with criminal records at the beginning of their productive lives and by reinforcing disrespect for the legal system."

The strategy council includes the secretaries of state, defense, and health, education and welfare; the attorney general; the administrator of veterans affairs and director of the White House Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention. Its report outlines a "federal strategy for drug abuse and drug traffic prevention."

"This strategy continues to emphasize a balanced treatment, rehabilitation, education and law enforcement policy aimed at preventing drug abuse," SAODAP director Robert DuPont said in a transmittal letter.

A four-page section of the federal drug abuse blueprint urges special considerations for drug treatment under any future national health insurance plan approved after Ford's moratorium on new federal spending expires.

Bartels to Resign Enforcement Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Bartels Jr., head of the Drug Enforcement Administration since its creation in 1973, planned to submit his resignation later today, sources said.

The DEA, which was set up by the Nixon administration to consolidate all federal drug enforcement efforts into a single agency, has been criticized almost since its formation because of internal strife and alleged inefficiency.

An aide, who asked not to be named, said Thursday night that Bartels intended to hand his resignation to Attorney General Edward Levi later today.

An informed source said pressure for Bartels' resignation came from the White House rather than the Justice Department.

The source said White House officials felt Bartels was so involved in defending his agency and his policies that his effectiveness had been "paralyzed."

There have been recurring allegations that the DEA's effectiveness has been diminished by feuding between personnel of the U.S. Customs Service and the former Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs after the merger creating the agency. Bartels in recent weeks had assured reporters that the feuding was a thing of the past.

Remembering JFK

Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, mother of Jackie Kennedy Onassis, places flowers at the grave of John F. Kennedy in Arlington National Cemetery on the 58th anniversary of the late President's birth. (UPI) 58th Birthday For JFK, if...

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — This Cape Cod summer resort would have been a beehive of activity this week celebrating John Fitzgerald Kennedy's 58 birthday — if

It would have overflowed Thursday with that special Kennedy mystique: sailing, swimming, parties. Real fun. Real celebrities. Camelot alive.

But, because of a sniper's bullet in Dallas, Texas, Nov. 22, 1963, all that about John Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, was reduced to only an "if."

Each person has his or her personal, cherished —and even private —memory of the man.

Statistically, he was a native of Brookline, Mass. born in a green clapboard house at 83 Beals St., now a National Historic Site. Or, as his mother Rose recalls: "The President was born in the twin bed near the window on May 29th, 1917, at three o'clock in the afternoon."

A resident of Hyannisport, he was a U.S. Senator and the President. The initials "JFK" can stand for only one person. But statistics never told the Kennedy saga. Stories about Kennedy fill books. His memorabilia has been gathered, ready for a library once the site is chosen.

One little-known story about Kennedy is centered about his search for a job in 1945.

Records show that on Feb. 1, 1945, he applied for a job as "expediter" at C.I. Brink Co. of Boston at a pay of $50 a week. The company dealt with electric and neon lights. He was hired. But he never took the job.

The job application, filled out in his handwriting, carries the notation from a Brink's company official: "O.K. to hire. $50 a week —tops."

But underneath that is written: "Expediter —Did not start."

The piece of paper is interesting in that Kennedy made no mention that he was the son of the former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy.

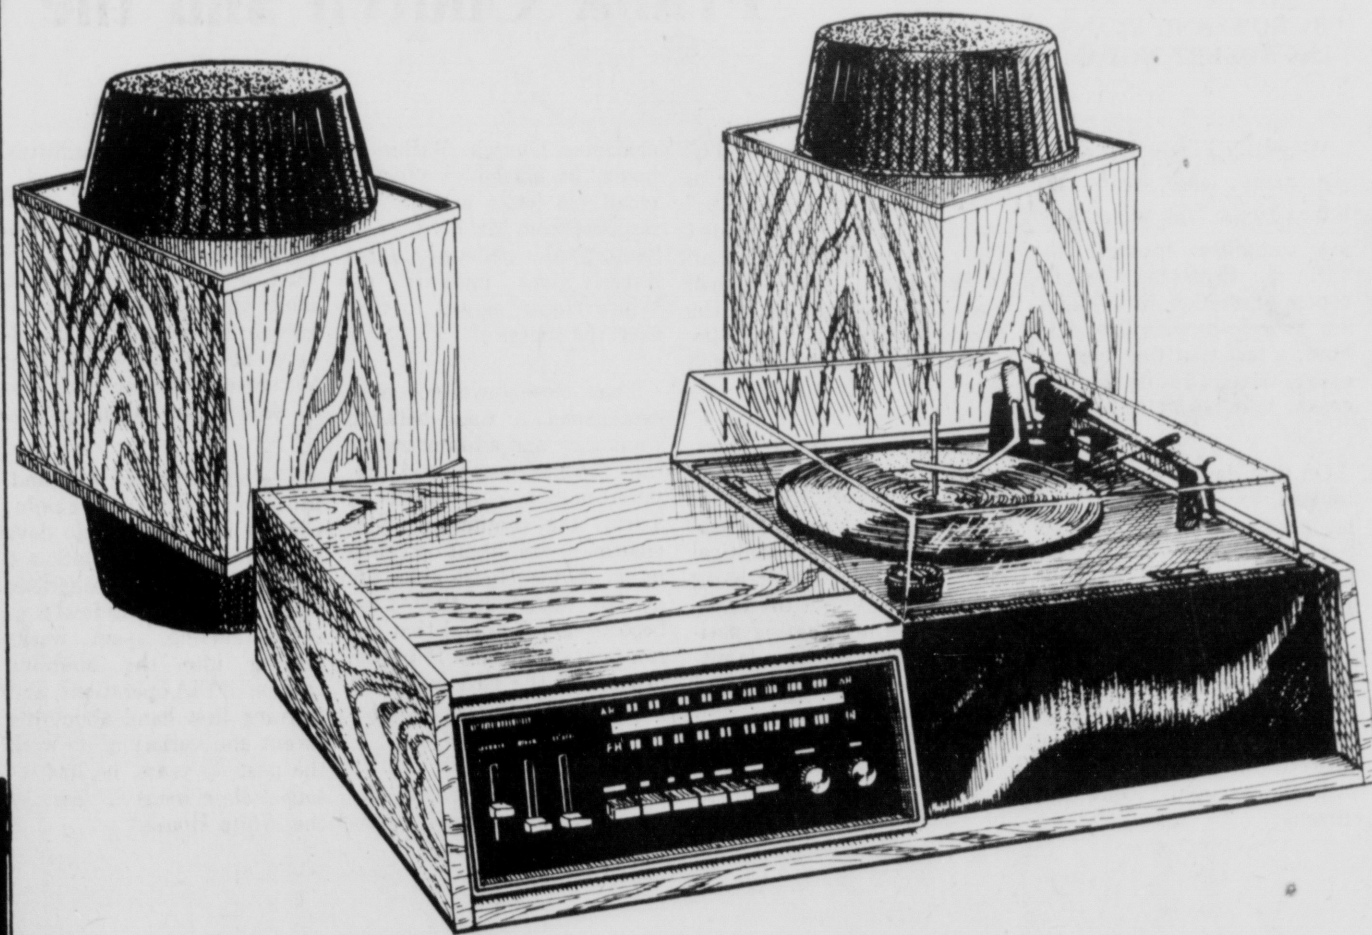

But even more unusual is that it had his wrong birthday. He listed his date of birth as: May 14, 1917. It should be May 29th.

And he gave his home address as 91 Claymoss Road, Boston, a location no longer able to be found.

However, handwriting experts have verified the signature on the document as that of Kennedy.

Garbage-Fuel

Fuel from garbage is now the latest thing on the energy front. A Pennsylvania utility is experimenting with generating electricity at lower cost by burning specially treated pellets processed from garbage. The reports are that garbage-fuel not only is a cheap method of generating electricity but the pellets are sulphur-free, so that air pollution standards can be met.

If this sort of arrangement proves successful, two problems could really be solved at one time. Not only would the cost of electricity come down but the vexing problem of what to do with our ever-increasing garbage accumulation would be solved. Here in Kingston we are well aware that areas for landfills are in short supply. The furor over the proposal to create one in the Chapel Street area is evidence enough that people don't want garbage dumps in their back yards. Perhaps the Pennsylvania experiment will eventually prove of value to the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Better Times

Talk of the recession's bottoming out arouses instinctive caution. The public has heard too many variations on this theme to credit all that it hears.

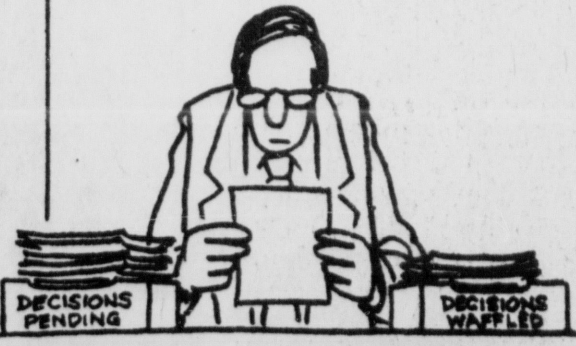

There do appear to be signs, now, that we have seen the worst—or almost the worst. Should this prove to be the case, some time would pass before there was much discernible improvement in human rather than statistical terms. It appears that even if we are about at a turning point we can expect unemployment, now around nine per cent, to continue at a high level for at least another year.

Still, there are glimmers of light. After a long period of stagnation, the first quarter of 1975 brought a substantial cut in inventories of unsold goods. In April, moreover, there was a 9.8 percent increase in new orders for durable goods. That is doubly significant: new orders had been markedly on the decline since late in 1974, and the April increase was the largest for any month since December 1967.

Another important indicator is the index of consumer prices, which shows the extent of inflation. The figures indicate a sharp decline in inflationary pressures: during the three-month period ending last October, prices went up at an annual rate of 13.6 percent, whereas during the past three months the corresponding rate of increase was less than half of that, 5.8 percent.

No quick turnaround can be expected, even if these trends accelerate. It takes time for such economic factors to be felt as "better times." But there is more substantial reason for hope now than there has been in some months.

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Ford is caught in a dilemma over the budget.

He wants to hold down government spending. Congressional leaders obligingly have offered to slash the defense budget. But the President is fiercely opposed to military cuts.

He also wants to hold down the deficit. But his advisers have urged him to extend the tax rebate for another year. Not only will the economy continue to require stimulation, they have told him, but the Democrats will continue the temporary tax cuts anyway. Therefore, the President may as well take credit for the extension, they suggested.

Meeting secretly with Republican congressional leaders, the President commented that the House budget committee's proposed $72 billion deficit and the Senate committee's $67 billion deficit aren't as bad as he had expected.

"The total figures are more than he wanted," said the President, "but are a lot better than the $100 billion we feared." "We're ashamed," interjected Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, "that the Senate made a better cut than we did." But he insisted that "I don't see how we can bring our $72 billion down to $60 billion."

Ford's goal is to hold the deficit to the $60 billion figure. But Rep. Elford Cederberg, R-Mich., warned: "We won't even get close to your objective unless we sustain a lot of vetoes. Why should we vote for $60 billion and lose?"

Defense Secretary James Schlesinger objected to the House's proposed $9 billion military cut.

"It's so severe," he protested, "that world confidence in us goes down even more dangerously. I hope we can resist so damaging a cut."

The President, breaking in, warned that "we're going to make a strong substantive issue about their cuts. I'll go around the country and fight like hell . . . And if anyone wants to join the issue I'll welcome it."

NAME DROPPING: Leon Jaworski, the former Watergate prosecutor, has been used unwittingly in an attempt to squelch a criminal investigation.

Jaworski's name was dropped by one of his law partners in an effort to persuade the Justice Department to halt a criminal investigation of Ven-Fuel.

The firm, reportedly half-owned by Venezuela, has been accused of overcharging the Jacksonville, Fla., Electric Authority for fuel oil. The utility company added the estimated $26 million to its customers' bills.

As we reported last February, the Federal Energy Administration had demonstrated a strange reluctance to press criminal charges against Ven-Fuel. Investigators for Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., found that there had been a concerted campaign inside the FEA to kill the criminal case.

Orchestrating this effort were lawyers Walter Surrey and Tom McDade, the latter from the powerful Jaworski firm in Houston. The firm represents International Systems and Control, a co-owner of Ven-Fuel.

Documents subpoenaed by Moss and sworn testimony show that the two attorneys pulled strings in an attempt to stop the criminal investigation.

"Mr. Jaworski has taken a personal interest in this case," McDade is quoted as telling assistant U.S. attorney Peter Dearing.

But Dearing stood up to the pressure and started keeping detailed memos of all his actions to insure the integrity of the investigation.

Footnote: We were unable to reach McDade, but Jaworski told us he doubted McDade would "toss around my name like that" and praised him as a "responsible and ethical attorney."

WALLACE'S ARMY: Alabama's Gov. George Wallace, who commands the state militia, has accumulated a "personal military staff" of about 40,000 honorary lieutenant colonels.

The appointees, who are scattered all over the country, receive a distinctive certificate bearing the state seal and the governor's signature.

The Alabama taxpayers, of course, foot the bill for the printing and mailings. Billy Joe Camp, the governor's spokesman, said the certificates are issued under state law and generate "good will for the state of Alabama."

They also generate good will for George Wallace, who happens to be campaigning for the presidency. Camp conceded that "to say (the honorary military appointments) had no connection" with the Wallace presidential campaign "would be somewhat erroneous." But he claimed there was "no overt effort to use the awards in the campaign."

NASSIKAS MEMO: Although he is supposed to be impartial, Federal Power Chairman John Nassikas has usually smiled upon the big utility firms and frowned upon the consumers.

But in a recent memo, he surpassed himself by suggesting to his economists that they find "an expert economist" who would testify before federal agencies to support Nassikas' views.

The purpose would be to speed up payments to natural gas producers.

Inside Report

Frank Church and the CIA

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Alleviating grave fears inside the White House, the select Senate committee probing the CIA is displaying uncommon discretion in avoiding any showdown with President Ford, a fact that first became clear with the backstage events that began April 9.

On that day, a letter signed by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, chairman of the 11-member select committee, was delivered to President Ford. It asked immediate submission to the committee of the confidential report prepared by CIA director William Colby for Mr. Ford last December after published reports charge the Central Intelligence Agency with spying on American citizens.

Church's letter, described by one top White House aide as "firm, but not peremptory," outraged the White House. Only one day earlier, the staff of the select committee had been privately advised by the White House that the Colby report would indeed be handed over.

Thus, White House aides, charged with meticulous monitoring of intelligence data wanted by the committee, suspected a transparent political ploy: that the Church letter was designed to put the President in the humiliating position of bowing to the committee after the decision had already been made to turn over the Colby report.

But the anger quickly turned to conciliation, thanks to chairman Church. Within 24 hours, he agreed in effect to recall his letter without any response from Mr. Ford. Presidential aides believed Church himself was unaware the White House agreed to turn over the material.

That closely-averted crisis established a tone between committee and administration that both Church and Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas, the committee's vice chairman, are intent on continuing. White House aides are not so sure, but they have become more hopeful that the raw politics inherent in purple exposures of the CIA will play second fiddle to the need for careful investigation.

One obvious reason for the Senate spirit is Church's conviction that his committee, crossing the spectrum from Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona on the right to Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado on the left, must stay united or his investigation will explode in politics. So far, the committee has voted unanimously on every issue it has taken up.

There is, however, a second, more significant reason. Church is a philosophic dove steeped in the isolationist traditions of the American West, but he is no radical fire-eater. Having spent weeks peering into the bubbling caldron of CIA operations, and learning first hand about the extent and variety of its work the past 35 years, he has resolved close issues in favor of the White House.

As one committee member told us: "Frank is leaning over backwards to avoid getting the CIA's blood on the committee's hands or his own. He knows this country needs an intelligence system."

Some committee liberals, aware of the chairman's caution against pushing the investigation too hard or too fast, are showing mild signs of unhappiness. While nothing approaching a schism has developed among committee Democrats, Church may have more trouble controlling them than holding down the Republican side of the committee.

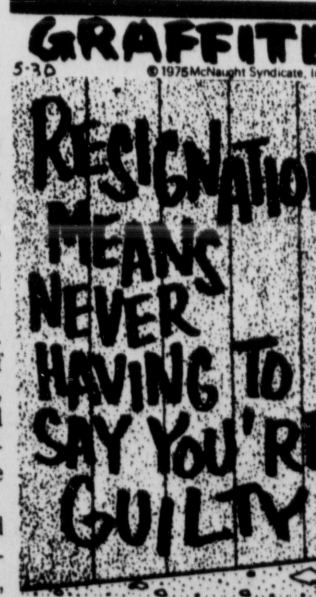

The Democratic unrest stems from this fact: on half a dozen separate issues involving CIA or White House refusal to turn over raw files to the committee, the administration had tentatively decided to invoke executive privilege: each time, however, the committee backed down.

Although it did not quite reach the executive privilege stage, one incident provided a good example. The committee, after pulling and tugging, was given a voluminous summary of an internal CIA report on the agency's problems containing anonymous criticisms by its own employees. The committee staff asked for names.

At first, Church went along with that request. But when the administration pointed out the flagrant unfairness of attaching the names of CIA employees to their own in-house criticisms, he backed off. If the committee does insist on the individual criticisms, the authors' names will be blanked out, as they certainly should be.

The CIA and the White House are working hard to keep Church's probe moving cooperatively. Extraordinarily stringent security imposed by Church and Tower on the committee and its staff, with most staffers assigned to specific pieces of the investigation and barred from across-the-board access, has worked well so far. In prospect, then, is a reasoned, fair and non-inflammatory Senate examination of the embattled agency, one that at least can avoid the worst excesses so feared at its start.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Vegas . . . A Kept Woman

There is a place where there is no day, no night, no sleep. It is the kept woman of America—Las Vegas, Nevada. Quadrennially, Kelly and I visit Vegas to pay our last respects to our money.

Coming in by plane, Vegas looks like an automobile junkyard glistening in a tawny desert. There is little to see walking up and down The Strip. Tourists tend to remain inside the plushiest hotels in the world.

There, drapes are drawn. I see no clocks, no calendars—nothing but the dazzling light from ornate crystal chandeliers. We had, at one time or another, stayed at the best hotels. The newest marvel is the MGM Grand Hotel, and we and our poke are in Room 2230.

It was built a couple of millions ago by Kirk Kerkorian, who sells airlines, buys Hollywood studios, then invests the movie money in a hotel which can be described as a city. He got Al Benedict, a genial smile, to help him build it and run it.

They gambled $125 million and won. My wife put $20 in the slot machines and returned to our room with a black hand. The casino is 420 feet long, 150 wide. Jim Mahoney wanted to bet me 8-to-5 I wouldn't find Kelly in a half-hour. I refused. Poor odds.

It seems strange to state, that in a town this small, there are more big name stars than in Hollywood.

The shows are as lavish as anything I remember from the days of Ziegfeld, George White or Erl Carroll.

The stages are broader, the choreography impressive, and each hotel puts on rows and rows of dancing girls in highly expensive costumes. Which leads to a new thought—Vegas makes its money on gambling but it spends it on entertainment.

A dozen years ago, Ben Blue was playing in a lounge—not a theater—and he told me he was getting $14,000 a week. The big star at that hotel was Eddie Fisher.

To Kelly, gambling is like an evil fascination—she knows it's bad, so she overrules her conscience and plays. I like the dice and blackjack; she likes the slots and roulette. If she wins, her face looks like a little girl who just got her first Barbie Doll.

If she loses, she puts on her fake I-don't-really-care smile and her color drains from the mascara south. She used to go to the Desert Inn and stare at two dice under glass. They were illuminated by a spotlight in the ceiling.

A forgotten old lady handled those dice. She didn't know how to shoot craps, but she took the dice and made 45 straight passes. To those who not know the game, this means that she won 45 successive times.

After she made the fifth straight pass, the word was transmitted from eyeball to eyeball that somebody was "hot" at the dice table. Professional gamblers put hundreds, then thousands, of dollars on the table cheering the old lady horse.

They made a fortune. She only bet $2 a roll and came out $90 ahead. I count more middle-aged ladies in the gambling casinos than men. The men have granite faces and rattler's eyes. These are the incurables. They disdain everything in life except the next card, the next roll of the dice.

Bob Rice at the Dunes had a heart attack while holding a poker hand. He died, still holding the five pasteboards. Mr. Rice was a gentleman of quality and was held in esteem by his conferees. The players were stunned. One of them, suddenly recalling the proper priorities, whispered, "Okay. Let's deal around him."

Vegas is a great town for poor priests and rabbis. The hotel owners sometimes sell a prime piece of property to them for $1. The collection baskets, quite often, have little cash in them. They are full of chips. Lucky gamblers show a measure of gratitude by dropping $25 and $50 gambling chips in the church poor box.

While writing this, I pulled back the drapes and found that there is daylight outside. Always remember, Howard Hughes owns part of Las Vegas, but no one ever caught him gambling here...

Nick Marino and Betty Atkins were named Mr. and Mrs. Republican at the recent 14th annual spring dance of the Town of Ulster Republican Club held at the Walnut Grove. The awards were presented by County GOP Vice Chairman Edwin F. Callahan (R). First Vice President Allen Stauble served as master of ceremonies. State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.) was a guest as was County GOP Chairman Albert Spada. (L to R) Stauble, Mrs. Paula Leonard, second vice president, Spada and Callahan. (Freeman photo)

Paltz Hopefuls Hit Finances

By Carl Graham

NEW PALTZ

Six candidates for the New Paltz Board of Education spoke at a "Meet the Candidates" night Thursday and, in common with most hopefuls in this area, spent most of their time discussing finances.

Incumbents John Ashton and Bartlett Wagner joined challengers Sally Rhoads, Vincent Leone, Terrance Copeland, and Edward Bell in a three-hour session at Inter-County Savings Bank for another in the series of annual meetings sponsored by the New Paltz Homeowners Association. They are running for seats now held by Donald Martin (not up for reelection), Ashton and Bartlett in a free-for-all in which the three top vote getters win three year terms on the board.

Ashton, who has served three non-consecutive terms on the board since 1956, said the board "must recognize that land taxes have been an increasing burden over the years."

He said the board had cut many items from the proposed $5.08 million budget and "I feel the items remaining are required."

Bell, associate director of admissions at the state college, said that being a board member is a difficult job "but I like a challenge." He said he had been a teacher, administrator, property owner and parent "and I know their problems." He called for better communications between board and public, a master plan for district affairs, and earlier presentation of budgets to the public.

Copeland, manager of the Pine Funeral Home, stressed that his profession is oriented to personal relationships and said that district residents are frustrated because their needs are not listened to or acted upon.

He called for a coalition of community groups to tackle school problems and promised to "listen to the people, look at all the facts, and arrive at honest and just answers."

Leone concentrated on New Paltz teachers, saying they averaged $19,000 yearly "and the average taxpayer would be only too happy to trade places with them." He called on New Paltz United Teachers to voluntarily give up a raise negotiated in a new two-year contract effective July 1.

Leone asked teachers to consider present economic conditions, unemployment, and the plight of senior citizens. "In the past, taxpayers have insulated teachers from adverse conditions. This is no longer possible," he said.

Mrs. Rhoads, a former survey director for Opinion Research Corporation, called the new budget "difficult but not impossible." She called for a local income tax to replace property taxes as support for schools.

"I have something unique to offer," she said. "I have time — time to talk with teachers, parents and administrators. They all have something to offer."

Wagner, an elementary education professor at the state college, favored open board meetings and more community involvement in school affairs.

"Money is a major problem," he said. "I think our middle school is atrocious and that athletic facilities at the high school are non-existent." He also took issue with Leone, saying that district teachers are worth what they are paid and calling the new teacher contract "fair and equitable."

When New Paltz voters go to the polls June 11 they will select three board members, vote on the budget (up 10.76 percent over this year's figure) and on separate propositions to spend up to $54,000 for three 66-passenger school buses and up to $21,000 for two 16-passenger vehicles.

The annual meeting will be held Tuesday, June 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school, with voting the following day from 2-9 p.m. in the middle school.

Tax Decrease For Highland

HIGHLAND Officials of the Highland Central School District are anticipating a tax decrease after adopting a proposed $4,151,334 budget for the 1975-76 academic year.

Although the proposed budget is 4.4 percent higher than the 1974-75 spending package, district officials have announced that an increased tax base in the district should result in a slight decrease in the overall tax rate.

"In a period when most school budgets are increasing between 10 and 15 percent," said Donald C. Baines, chief school officer of the Highland district, and include cut-backs in both program and staff, we are most fortunate to be able to provide a continuation of our full program, while increasing the budget by less than 4 1/2 percent."

A public hearing on the proposed school budget will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Middle School Auditorium. Voting for both the 1975-76 proposed budget, as well as candidates for the two available seats on the school board, will be held Tuesday, June 10 from 2-9 p.m. at the Middle School.

'Task Force' On Malpractice

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut Thursday announced the formation of a bi-partisan task force to pierce the "screen of secrecy" surrounding the insurance industry's medical malpractice policies.

"The task force will work to get behind the insurance industry's screen of secrecy and obtain answers to important questions that went unanswered during the recent medical malpractice crisis," the Brooklyn Democrat said.

Steingut said the legislature, in working out its recent compromise malpractice insurance law, was "continually frustrated by the unavailability of pertinent information from the industry."

Credit Management Scholarship for UCCC

STONE RIDGE
Ulster County Community College has received a $250 scholarship donation from the Ulster Credit Management Association (UCMA) of Kingston.

"We realize the importance of professional training in the retail and business management fields and know that UCCC is doing its best to offer this training," said William Lounsbury, UCMA president.

The Scholarship Committee at UCCC will select a full-time business management or retail major who plans to transfer to a four-year college or university and who is an Ulster County resident. The scholarship will be directly applied to the student's tuition. UCMA is a non-profit group of 35 area credit management executives whose objective is to promote the education of credit executives and educate the public in the wise use of credit. Robert T. Brown, UCCC president, accepted the donation from Richard A. Reno of Saugerties, chairman of the UCMA scholarship committee. The recipient will be announced June 8 and will be presented to UCMA members at their June meeting.

Two Are Nabbed

STONE RIDGE
Tipped off by a suspicious pharmacist, state police arrested two New York City residents who allegedly attempted to fill a stolen prescription at D-D's Hy-Way Pharmacy in Stone Ridge.

Police went to the pharmacy at about 3:45 p.m. Thursday and arrested Charles Gustafson, 36, and Margaret Ballan, 27, on charges of criminal possession of a forged instrument in the second degree, a felony.

Through subsequent investigation, the two were also charged with criminal possession of a hypodermic instrument and criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree. Police said a quantity of alleged hashish was confiscated. Gustafson and Miss Ballan were jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail each to await further court action.

Nursery Session

PORT EWEN
Port Ewen Nursery will hold an open house Tuesday from 10 a.m. to noon for parents and pre-schoolers.

Patty's Sister Pleads Guilty

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Anne Hearst, 19-year-old sister of missing heiress Patricia Hearst, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court today to possession of amphetamines.

The charge can carry a one-year prison term or a $5,000 fine but Judge John T. Curtin, under a provision in the code, allowed Miss Hearst to go free on probation. Under the code, if there is no violation of the probation after four months, the charge would be dropped.

Curtin placed her under the supervision of the U.S. Probation Office where she resides. Miss Hearst appeared with her father, Randolph, and her attorney, George L. Grobe Jr., of Buffalo.

Miss Hearst was arrested March 4 at the Rainbow Bridge in Niagara Falls when U.S. customs agents found a small quantity of amphetamine capsules in the car in which she and two companions attempted to re-enter the United States from Canada.

Donald Moffett, 21, was arrested with Miss Hearst and also charged, but since both he and Miss Hearst said the pills were hers, Curtin dropped the charges against him. George Boomer of Grosse Pointe, Mich., also was with them, but he was not charged. Curtin, in placing her on probation, said there were "mitigating factors."

He said Miss Hearst "foolishly took pills along with her to help with driving," calling it a "stupid mistake."

Classes Resume

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Albany High School was slated to reopen today after being closed since Wednesday because of racial tension.

Principal John Bach said Thursday the school will reopen with an "atypical" security system to prevent any further outbreaks.

According to Bach, school faculty members have had enough experience to control the reopening.

Classes were closed Wednesday after a large group of students took part in a brawl on school grounds, following an incident Sunday night between white and black youths.

Gary J. Scarpa, 23, was charged with second degree criminal possession of a forged instrument and third degree criminal possession of stolen property.

Police said the check was one of several allegedly stolen from a Saugerties residence. Scarpa was arrested at the bank shortly after 1 p.m.

Sunday Special

KINGSTON
Sundays at the Ulster County SPCA are reserved for the adoption of pets only. Surrendering of animals to the shelter on Brabant Road must of necessity be permitted on weekdays only due to the reduced staff on Sundays, according to shelter officials.

Each month about 180 dogs and 174 cats are surrendered and the shelter attends to the preventative and restorative medical needs of all animals who are candidates for new homes. But, with physical facilities to maintain only 75 animals at a time, the quantity of those in need is always overwhelming.

Under its new management the shelter is launching a determined effort to place more animals, therefore the decision to open Sundays from noon to 4 p.m. for adoptions only. The shelter meets all other needs on the five weekdays it is open to the public.

SOLAR HOME UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN DUTCHESS COUNTY.

STORAGE TANK (FAR WALL): HEART OF THE SYSTEM.

Area's First Solar-Heated Home Now Under Construction

By Jon Powers

HOPEWELL JUNCTION
One constant in this world of change is the sun. A retired Hopewell Junction man, with some help from an innovative West Hurley engineering firm, has plans to tap the limitless energy reserves of our nearest star with what has been billed as the first solar-heated home in the Hudson Valley.

Robert Ramage is building a retirement home near this Dutchess County community that will depend primarily on the sun's rays for its heat and hot water. The intricate system of collectors, ducts and computer-controlled fans that will harness and distribute the solar-generated heat was designed by Ahead Company of West Hurley.

While scientists and government officials try to convince the American public that solar energy is an impractical solution to the nation's energy crisis—and billions of dollars continue to be spent on nuclear research—Ramage and Ahead Co. president Neil Freer are convinced that their system is safe, sensible and dependable. Both have made a commitment to prove that solar energy advocates—labeled long on imagination and short on technology by many—hold the key to our future independence from fossil and atomic fuels.

Ramage is betting in the neighborhood of $50,000 that Freer's concepts are valid. The home's solar system alone will cost two to three times more than a conventional heating system, but that initial investment is expected to be recovered in seven to ten years.

Freer's solar system performs three basic functions: collection, storage and circulation. But while most systems use liquid as the medium for heat distribution, the West Hurley engineer will use air to accomplish that task.

Nine-hundred square feet of fiberglass solar panels—installed on the home's steep-sloped roof facing toward the southwest—will absorb the sun's rays. A series of air ducts, connected to the panels, lead to the storage tank.

The air in the ducts, heated by the solar panels, is pumped into a 144-cubic-foot storage tank located in the basement. The tank is filled with crushed stone, which affords better retention of the heat.

When thermostats inside the home determine that additional heat is needed, 24-volt fans engage automatically, directing the stored warm air through vents to whatever area of the house needs extra warmth.

Of course, the whole system depends on the sun. While the heat source is always present (at least during the day), its efficiency can be affected by cloud cover. The temperature of the panels, said Freer, can reach as high as 235 degrees; the one million BTU's of energy collected in the storage tank should be sufficient to heat the Ramage home for a minimum of three consecutive sunless days.

And what happens if, some cold February, the sun doesn't break through the clouds for five days or more? Leaving nothing to chance, architects have added a standby electric heating system, just in case.

Although the solar system will cost in the neighborhood of $6,000 to install, the home will be totally independent of fuel oil and its attendant costs. Ramage estimates that it will cost just $5 a month during the winter to run the fans that distribute the warm air. With the savings on monthly fuel bills, it is estimated that the system will pay for itself in a minimum of 10 years.

"I hope I'm still around to see the benefits," said the retired New York City advertising executive, "but if I'm not, at least my heirs will benefit from the system."

Ramage's commitment to alternative energy is total. A smaller set of solar panels to be installed in an attached greenhouse will provide hot water for the home. The windows of the home will be designed so that the direct rays of the sun in the summer will be deflected by overhanging eaves, rather than passing directly into the house.

And the same system that heats the home in the winter will cool it in the summer. At night, fans will pump cooler air into the storage tank, where it can be retained at 55 degrees for distribution during the day.

The Hopewell Junction home, which marks Freer's first formal attempt at a working solar energy system, is expected to be completed in August. By this time next year, the two solar enthusiasts will have a pretty good idea to what extent the sun can meet one family's energy demands. And Freer is hoping that this one working system will help silence critics and skeptics who have scorned solar energy as little more than a plaything for the over-imaginative.

Ulster Grand Jury Indicts County Man for Murder

KINGSTON
Making its final report on Thursday, the March term Ulster County Grand Jury indicted a 43-year-old Marlboro man for second degree murder.

Named in the indictment handed up in supreme court was Angelo Arellano Jr.

Arellano was arrested March 26 following the fatal stabbing of George Bolduc, 61, of South Road, Milton.

At the time of the arrest, police said Arellano attempted to gain admittance to Bolduc's home and when refused allegedly pushed Bolduc to the floor and stabbed him numerous times with a kitchen knife.

Two women at the Bolduc residence at the time also reportedly received minor injuries when they came to Bolduc's aid. One of the women was reportedly a former girlfriend of Arellano.

Arellano was arrested after leaving the scene as he was spotted walking along a road "covered with blood" by a Town of Marlborough police officer on his way to the Bolduc house.

Named in other indictments handed up by the grand jury were:

• Anthony Van Driel, indicted on a charge of third degree burglary. The charge stemmed from an alleged break-in at a Marlboro office in April after Van Driel allegedly escaped from Hudson River State Hospital.

• Thelma Price, 19, of Rondout Gardens, indicted for second degree criminal possession of a forged instrument. The charge stems from an alleged attempt to cash a stolen welfare check.

Old-Fashioned Styles of Yesteryear

By Dorothy A. Narel

No one would deny that today's well-dressed woman is not only sophisticated, but feminine. She wants functional clothes with style and flair. She wants a multi-purpose wardrobe that works hard for many climates and occasions. But what about the women back in the 18-1900's. Objectives haven't changed that much, only designs.

Evidence of this was illustrated in a fashion show given May 23 in the social hall of Old Dutch Church by members of the Senior Citizen's Alliance. Billed as an "Old-Fashioned Style Show of Yesteryear," designers' creations were unveiled and modeled by members of the senior citizen group. Arrangements for the occasion were made by Mrs. Emily Salzmann, president of the Central Senior Citizens with Mrs. Howard Aliton, serving as commentator.

As described by Mrs. Salzmann, "Some of the outfits dated back to colonial times. There were suits with narrow waists, busties and leg of mutton sleeves. The early 1900's produced hats with flowers or plumes and long dresses touching the dusty sidewalks."

Objectives Haven't Changed ... Only the Designs

The senior citizen fashion show also included the Flapper Age with its "Charleston," a bathing beauty in her black and white knee length suit, sleeves to the elbow, sneakers and black stockings and bathing cap.

About the cap, Mrs. Salzmann says: "... it looked like a dusting cap carrying a beach umbrella to protect that lily complexion."

"The fur capes, neckpieces and muffs made you wish you lived in that era and the gentlemen's high hat and frog-tail coat looked so very formal and proper ... not too different from his 1975 counterpart. But then the male image never underwent such drastic and frequent style changes as the female, did they?"

Among those modeling were Grace Heaney, Freda Geuss, Dorothy Mitchell, Gertrude Woelfersheim, Pearl Renn, Ella Studt, Hilda Yerry, Mary Steeger, Gertrude Dempsie, Helene Fuegel, Betty Burgher, Helen Flanagan, Mary Grego, Esther Heppner and Grace Heaney.

Mrs. Salzmann also told LIFE this particular fashion show has been staged for the benefit of patients and nursing staff in the various area nursing homes. It has always been well received.

Properly Attired for 1945 are Esther Heppner, as the lady, and Mary Grego, as the gentleman. The 'yesteryear' fashion show was given by the Senior Citizen's Alliance.

Brown Plush winter suit is modeled by Freda Geuss. It dates back to 1880. Mrs. Howard Aliton, who served as fashion commentator, modeled an old Dutch outfit.

Local Talent With Baroque Ensemble Saturday

HOWARD VOGEL

Woodstock Playhouse will feature two new members of the Ulster County music community Saturday, May 31, at 8:30 p.m. They are Wittenberg-residents Howard and Jodi Vogel who will bring the nationally-known New York Baroque Ensemble to the Playhouse for a performance.

The Ensemble, founded in 1961, has counted some of the finest musicians among its members. It has maintained a tradition of programming unusual and little-played 17th and 18th century chamber music as well as the more standard works by such masters as Telemann, Corelli and Scarlatti. The Woodstock program will include these as well as a chamber cantata and a Bach aria.

Soloists for the May 31 performance will include John Aler, tenor; Judith Norell, harpsichordist, and William Henry, violinist. Mr. Vogel will play recorder and bassoon, and Jodi Vogel, recorder and cello.

Aler performed with the Opera Society of Washington, D.C., in the recent Mozart Festival at the Kennedy Center. As the tenor member of the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble, he has toured extensively in this country and in Europe. He was hired by Boris Goldovsky to perform the title role in Britten's "Albert Herring," in the 1973 Spring tour production. Later that year he performed in the role of Habinnas in the American premiere of Bruno Maderna's opera, "Satyricon," at the Berkshire Musician Festival in Tanglewood.

Judith Norell has received critical acclaim in her extensive concertizing with the harpsichord. William Henry, violinist, was soloist in the New York Baroque Ensemble's concert in April, 1974, at the Church of the Holy Cross in Kingston.

The Vogels, long associated with the Baroque Ensemble, have continued performing and teaching music in New York City, Woodstock and at SUNY at New Paltz while maintaining a residence in Wittenberg.

Harris Gordon, executive director of the Woodstock Playhouse, has recommended that, in the interest of time, telephone reservations be made with the box office. Tickets may then be picked up at any time before the performance at the box office or at the ticket booth in Mammoth Mall, Kingston.

Dear Abby:

Keeps Second Marriage a Secret

By Abigail Van Buren

1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Danny and I have been married for five years. He had just been divorced, and I had never been married before. (I was 30, and Danny was 42 at the time.)

Abby, he still hasn't told his family that we are married. His ex-wife and sister are very close — like sisters — and his sister never gave up hope that Danny and his ex would get back together.

They know about me, but I guess they must think Danny and I are just living together. I never liked the idea of his keeping our marriage a secret from his family, but he has forbidden me to tell them and keeps saying that he will tell them at the "proper" time.

Abby, this really upsets me. What is he waiting for? When I bring it up, he says that I am being childish and that I should trust him.

This bothers me so much I think I am going to have a nervous breakdown. Can you figure him out? I can't.

FRAZZLED NERVES

DEAR FRAZZLED: I can't figure him out, either. But you can bet the rent that Danny is keeping something from you.

You have two choices: Make up your mind that you don't give a hoot whether or not Danny's family knows you are married, or tell him that if he doesn't announce your marriage by the fourth of July, there will be fireworks!

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to another city where my husband was appointed to an executive position.

He told me that we should wait until the wives of executives invite us before we make any overtures to socialize with them.

Later I found out that every wife of a peanut clerk had invited top-management people to their homes, their invitations had been accepted and a good time was had by all.

Balkan Song, Dance Fete in Woodstock

Woodstock's first annual one-day Balkan song and dance festival will be held Saturday, May 31, in the Woodstock Town Hall.

Martin Koenig will teach two workshops in Balkan Dance, the first at 1 p.m., the second beginning at 8:30 p.m. He has done research in music and dance throughout the Balkans. He has recorded and filmed music and dance in Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia and other countries. The dances that he will be teaching are dances that he himself has brought back to the United States. He will show some films during the evening workshop. The films are not of stage performances but of peasants doing their own dances in their own villages.

The workshops will be structured so as to benefit both beginning and advanced dancers. Marty has the ability to make learning easy but at the same time puts you in a mood to really dance to a different type of music.

Following his afternoon session Ms. Ethel Raim will give a workshop in Balkan singing at 3:30. She is one of the organizers of, and has long been associated with the well-known song group, The Pennywhistlers. She also has made research trips to the Balkan countries to collect song material.

Both Ethel Raim and Koenig have done research for the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. This mini-festival will provide an opportunity for local people to meet, sing and dance with folk dancers from other areas.

The regular Woodstock Folk Dance group will meet tonight at 8:30 at the Town Hall with Ron Sanders in charge.

GARNET MAY

Lefooters Tonight

The Lefooters Western Square Dance Club will have Garnet May of Belleville, Ontario, as the caller tonight during the dance starting at 8 o'clock at Hurley Reformed Church, off Route 209.

May lives just outside Belleville, Ontario, in an old stone farm House with his wife, Gwen and their five children. He calls for the Belleville Hits and Mrs., and Whirlaways, the Kingston Limestone Swingers and Peterborough Spares and Squares. They (Garnet May and his wife) also teach a square dance class in Belleville.

May does his guest calling in the summer months, as his regular clubs keep him too busy to travel far from home during the winter square dance season. He travels through the southern Ontario, New York and New England during his guest calling stints. He and his wife have conducted tours to Hawaii, and a Caribbean Cruise. They have plans to conduct tours to Hawaii again in 1977 and 1978, with another Caribbean Cruise coming up in 1976. They are a part of Bob Page's Continental Squares.

May is a member of Callerlab, and has attended the first and second conventions, and is looking forward to the third. He has been on staff at the Toronto International in Toronto, and at Hamilton, twice. He also has called at many festivals in Kingston, London and Halifax. The Mays' also conduct their own Dance 'N Camp weekends near Belleville, as well as working with other callers on their weekends in Ontario and in New York State.

May is a member of Toronto District Square Dance Association and the Ottawa Square Dance Association.

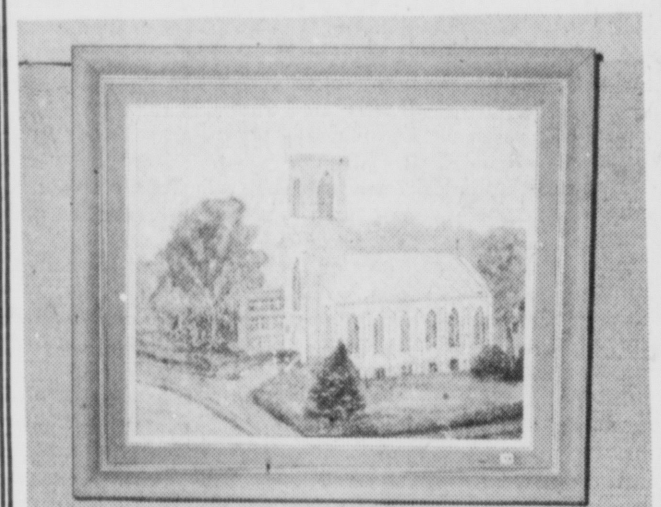

The Lefooters would like any club level dancers to come out and join tonight, for an evening of fun and dancing.

The last round of the Month Workshop for the season will be held tonight at 7:30, immediately preceding the square dance.

Italian Dinner-Dance

The Parish of St. John the Evangelist will hold its fifth annual Italian Night Dinner-Dance in the Parish Hall, Route 212, Centerville, Saturday night, June 14.

An Italian Dinner, complete with draft beer and set-ups, will be served from 8 to 9:30 p.m. followed by dancing to the music of the Joey Vigna Quartet.

Tickets are now available at St. John the Evangelist Rectory, 5258 Churchland Road, Saugerties, 12477. Deadline for reservations is June 10. Early reservations are requested.

one of the most popular social events of the parish, and it is hoped that this year's dinner-dance will surpass previous years as an outstanding social and financial success for the benefit of the parish building fund.

Can Hawks Cage Their Gems?

N.Y. (UPI) — It's the old "good news-bad news" syndrome for the Atlanta Hawks.

First, the good news: the Hawks had the first, third and 19th choices in Thursday's National Basketball Association college draft and landed North Carolina State's David Thompson, Morgan State's Marvin Webster and Dwight Morrow High School's (yes, high school) Bill Willoughby.

Now, the bad news: Atlanta has to sign these basketball hotshots and as the song says, "It Don't Come Easy." Well, it don't come cheap either.

You don't have to tell the Hawks the country's in a recession because they're already sagging under the financial burden of decreased audiences and inflated salaries.

Consequently, the Hawks' fourth pick in the draft was almost as important as the first three because Atlanta was able to sell it (the No. 3 choice in the second round) to Seattle for a sizeable chunk of cash.

Thompson, a shy 22-year-old three-time All-American and last season's UPI Player of the Year, has engaged attorney Larry Fleischer to help him get over his shyness and the New York lawyer has done a splendid job as David's asking price is reportedly $3 million range.

"We wouldn't have drafted them if we couldn't pay them," Atlanta Hawks president John Wilcox told skip-tical reporters. "I can just go on the Hawks' track record and that track record is very good at signing No. 1 picks."

A 6-4 forward at N.C. State, Thompson led the Wolfpack to the national championship in his junior year after an undefeated sophomore season. Best known for his spectacular aerial acrobatics, Thompson has the ball-handling ability and outside accuracy to make an excellent pro swingman.

Webster, nicknamed the "Human Eraser," was named the Most Valuable Player in the 1974 NCAA Division II national championship tournament when he led Morgan State to the title.

Willoughby, a 6-8 forward who averaged 35 points and 22 rebounds a game for his Englewood, N.J., high school, was not the first prep star chosen in the draft as burly 6-10 Darryl Dawkins of Maynard Evans High of Orlando, Fla., was the fifth player selected, taken by the Philadelphia 76ers.

Willoughby, who had signed a letter-of-intent with the University of Kentucky, and Dawkins are now ineligible for NCAA competition, although they could play junior college or NAIA ball if they decide not to sign with the NBA or the American Basketball Association.

Other first-round picks were:

Oklahoma forward Alvan Adams and Nevada-Las Vegas guard Ricky Sobers by Phoenix; Arizona State guard Lionel Hollins by Portland; Stanford center Rich Kelley by New Orleans; Louisville swingman Junior Bridgeman by Los Angeles; Jackson State forward Eugene Short by New York; DePaul center Bill Robinson and Penn forward Bob Bigelow by Kansas City; Southern Illinois center Joe Meriweather by Houston; Seattle University guard Frank Oleynick by the Seattle SuperSonics; LaSalle center Joe Bryant by Golden State; Southern California center John Lambert by Cleveland; South Carolina forward Tom Boswell, who still has another year eligibility, by Boston; and Kentucky swingman Kevin Grevey by Washington.

The prize for originality in the draft goes to New Orleans which used its 10th and final round pick to claim Aleksander Belov, a 6-7 forward for the U.S.S.R. national team. The Jazz, when questioned about the validity of the selection, assured the NBA's assistant commissioner Simon Gourdine: "His class has graduated."

The Milwaukee Bucks, who have been told by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar that he wants to be traded, used their first pick, which came in the second round, to claim Furman center Clyde Mayes. Another team showing a lively interest in centers was Portland, which took Maryland's Tom Roy in the third round and Houston's Maurice Presley in the fifth. It seems like just last year the Trail Blazers made Bill Walton the No. 1 choice in the NBA draft.

... which way will he go?

KHS Advances to Section One Finals

WAPPINGERS FALLS — Good pitching—the key ingredient in Kingston High School's DCSL baseball championship season—was the difference again Thursday as the Maroons' Joe Primo three-hit Ketcham, 1-0, in the Section One semi-final round.

Kingston now advances to the finals where it will meet White Plains in a best two-of-three series for the Class AA championship. Game one will be played Saturday at 4 p.m. at Dietz Stadium, game two Monday at White Plains, and game three, if necessary, on Tuesday at Dietz Stadium. Should KHS win the AA crown it would then play the Class A winner on June 5. The survivor of that contest meets the B-C champ on June 7 and the Section Nine AA-A kingpin on June 10. If the Maroons go through the entire playoff format, they will have taken the field 26 times this season.

To make it to the AA finals, Coach Ron Cole's nine scored an unearned run in the fourth inning and then let Primo, the ace of the Maroon mound corps, make it hold up.

The Kingston run came in the bottom of the fourth (KHS was the "home" team although the game was played at Ketcham). Lou Eccleston beat out a grounder to deep short and moved to second when Rich Contelmo's throw went over the head of the first baseman. Eccleston moved to third on Rich Bell's infield hit and scored when catcher Tom Creighton overthrew second base trying to cut down the stealing Bell.

The run was scored off Ed Devine, who held KHS to four hits, fanning four and walking one. Ketcham's No. 1 hurler, Mark Esser, had struck out 16 the day before as RCK was eliminating New Rochelle.

Primo struck out eight and walked one. His only jam occurred in the third when Ketcham put runners on first and third with one out, but Joe put down the threat.

Ketcham had been seeded higher in the tournament than Kingston despite the fact that the third seeded Maroons had beaten the Indians twice during the regular season. The seedings were based on overall records which made RCK 16-6. KHS was 13-5 and did not play any non-league games.

White Plains, Kingston's foes in the finals, were seeded fifth. The Plainsmen topped Yonkers, 11-5, Thursday to make it to the title round.

A PGA Tournament With Real Class

ATLANTA (UPI) — The PGA called it right when it figured making the Atlanta Golf Classic a "designated" tournament would give it real class.

The Classic, only event other than the Tournament Players Championship given that label this year, has four U.S. Open champions ranked among its top seven leaders going into today's second round.

How much more could a tournament ask? Defending U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin and two-time U.S. Open champ Billy Casper are tied for the lead with lesser-known Joe Inman — and none other than Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller are in the next group, two strokes back.

Casper, insisting he's playing better than he has in several years; Irwin, fresh from a two-week vacation; and Inman, one of the many young Wake Forest grads making their mark on the tour, all shot 6-under-par 66s in Thursday's opening round of the $225,000 Classic.

Nicklaus, who won't play again until the Open three weeks from now, and Miller, knocked out of a share of the lead by a two-stroke penalty, had 68s along with Leonard Thompson and Jack Ewing.

The corps of U.S. Open champs also had a representative among the nine 69 shooters in Lee Trevino.

Miller was complaining about the pin placements and Nicklaus and Irwin both admitted they were as tough as they had seen on the opening day of a tournament. But, even with that, the "almost perfect" fairways and greens produced 44 sub-par rounds.

"The pin placements were like a tough Sunday," said Miller. "But, I guess they were trying to keep us from tearing up the course like we did with all those low scores in Wednesday's pro am."

"We were getting perfect lies in the fairway and any time you have that situation, it's a green light to go for the pin."

Miller's two-shot penalty came when he hit his drive too far left at No. 15 and put the ball in the creek.

"Anytime you shoot four under with a double bogey, you have to be satisfied," said Miller.

Nicklaus, winner of more than $166,000 so far this year, and Miller, winner of more than $155,000, can go over the $200,000 the earliest yet by winning this tournament's $45,000 top prize.

Nicklaus, who returned to the tour last week at Memphis after a three-week layoff and tied for third, said his game "is right on target" for the U.S. Open and he expects to play "just three more rounds (here)" before making a bid for that title.

Since he won his fifth Masters here in Georgia last month, a victory in the Open would put Nicklaus halfway on his bid for a never-yet-achieved professional "Grand Slam." He won the first two in 1972, but then finished second to Trevino in the British Open to end that bid.

Casper, who will be 44 next month, has already won more than $64,000 and a tournament (New Orleans) this year.

"My game is very solid right now," said Casper, winner of 51 tour events during his career. "I'm hitting a lot of shots where I want to hit them. It feels good and the old putter is really working."

ELLIOTT MADDOX IS SAFE AT HOME

Maddox Is Feeling Better

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — All Elliott Maddox needed to get well at the plate was to pay a visit to the team he hates the most.

And sure enough, once Maddox caught sight of the Texas Rangers Thursday night, he got to feeling better in a hurry.

Maddox, who had suffered through a 1-for-20 batting slump during the past few days, went 4-for-5 against his former teammates, drove in four runs and produced the two tie-breaking runs in the top of the ninth that gave the Yankees a 7-5 victory over the slumping Rangers in the only game played in the majors.

It was the sixth straight loss for fourth place Texas, which led the American League West only a week ago.

Maddox became a central figure in a beanball, name calling run-in with Texas during spring training, an incident which continued briefly last week when the Rangers were in New York.

But after his splendid night at the plate in the opening game of a four-game series with Texas, Maddox was watching his words very carefully. "I don't want to get in any trouble," he said. "Sure, it's always nice to get a couple of hits against the Rangers but really, I was just happy to get hits against anybody."

"I have been in such a terrible slump. Last night in Kansas City I ran into such bad luck that I just about said 'to heck with it.'"

Maddox' luck was running so bad Wednesday night that an almost certain hit up the middle struck the pitcher's rubber and was converted into an out.

He said he had some brief chats with one or two Rangers during his several visits to the basepaths. Wednesday night but he did not want to be specific.

"There were a few 'hellos' exchanged here and there," he said. "I think all of this (furor over the beanball episode) is over. I hope so anyway."

Maddox tripled home Bobby Bonds in the first inning, then scored himself on a sacrifice fly by Thurman Munson. After Texas tied the game at 3-3, Maddox put the Yankees back in front in the fifth with a two-out single that scored Fred Stanley from second.

The Rangers fought back again to tie the score at 5-5 but Maddox struck again in the ninth.

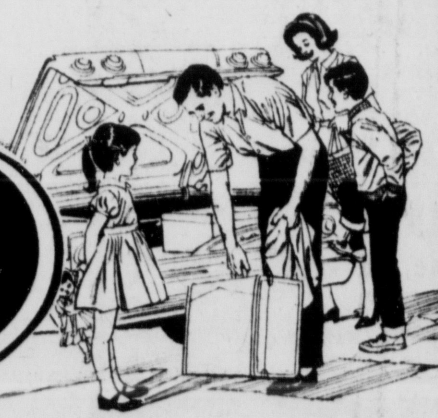

The Yankees put runners on first and third with only one out but the Rangers came close to getting out of the jam when pinch runner Larry Murray was thrown out at home trying to score on a ground ball hit by Bonds.

That brought up Maddox with two out and two on and he produced his fourth hit—a double to left centerfield that won the game.

There will be a full schedule tonight. In the American League, the Rangers and Yankees meet again, Kansas City is at Milwaukee, Chicago at Detroit, Boston at Minnesota, Baltimore at California and Cleveland at Oakland.

Smedes' Homers Pace Handlebar

KINGSTON Mike Smedes didn't waste any of his three chances at the plate in the City Slo Pitch's A Division. He walloped a pair of homers and drilled a single to knock in a total of five runs to lead the Handlebar to a 10-4 win over Esposito's Cleaners. In other divisional results, the Truck Stop hauled away an 11-3 victory over 9W Hofbrau; Partner's Lounge breezed to a four-inning 16-3 triumph over Guido's; the Boiceville Inn plastered Artie's Bar, 11-5; and the Country Kitchen picked up a forfeit from Boyles AC.

The Bars battered loser Bud Lucas Sr. for five first inning runs and held the lead all the way. Bill Kamszik tripled and Bernie Carroll doubled to aid the attack as Jim Wahamata got the decision.

Ron Burris homered, tripled and drove in three runs to lead the Truckers. Rick Bessemer and Chuck Jackson also poked three-baggers in support of Ron White who gave up only seven hits to get the win.

John Phelan and Dan Brown belted homers, Gary Port slammed three hits, and Ed Akins collected four RBI's in the Partner's Lounge romp. Frank Piasanti's RBI triple in the first was another of the winners' 18 hits.

Bob O'Connor got plenty of help from Rick Lewis, John Stelton and Marty Strong to beat Artie's Joe Uhl. Lewis homered and drove in four runs, and Stelton and Strong each pounded a double and triple. John Parete also had a pair of RBI's in the win.

KINGSTON The second tryouts for the Kingston Braves of the Hudson Valley Rookie League will be held Saturday, May 31, at 5:30 p.m. at Dietz Stadium, General Manager Fred Davi has announced.

Davi invites all area baseball players to try out for the team. The Rookie League season gets under way this weekend.

Soccer League to Open

POUGHKEEPSIE The Hudson Valley Soccer League is off the ground with a four-team setup, including Kingston, Rhinebeck, Peekskill and Poughkeepsie. The league opener is scheduled Sunday when Peekskill is at Rhinebeck.

Because it has not yet found a home field, the Kingston club will play its first two games on the road — June 8 at Peekskill and June 15 at Rhinebeck. All Sunday games are scheduled at 4 p.m. The Wednesday contests at 6:15 p.m.

Rhinebeck will play its home games at Rhinebeck High School, Peekskill at Peekskill High School and Poughkeepsie at the Germania Blue and White field off Route 44 and 55. Kingston is still looking for a field.

Jays Clinch Pennant

KINGSTON John Jay High edged Kingston High 8-5 to clinch the 1975 Dutchess County Scholastic League's girls softball title. But the Maroons, by virtue of their second place finish, have been awarded a berth in the Section One championships at Pine Plains.

Dawn Reilly of John Jay limited Kingston to five hits and struck out 10. Barb Myers pitched a six-hitter for Kingston. Lori Eaton paced Kingston with a homer, double and three runs batted in. Sandy Mancuso stroked three singles. Linda Anderson had a single and triple for Jay.

Four LL Shutouts

KINGSTON Little League pitchers accounted for four shutouts in games this week. In the Town of Esopus, Mike Maroney of the Port Even Fire Department zipped the Callanan Mets 17-0 on one hit. Clark Maines slammed a homer and three singles and Joe Mitchell double and homer for the Giants.

Joe Mendock of the Hercules Braves blanked Esopus Lions Club Dodgers 4-0 on two hits.

Paul Brink of Turk Construction Braves checked Ulster Kiwanis Yankees 7-0 on four hits.

In the Rondout Valley League, Ian Walker of the Braves stopped the Indians 9-0 on two hits.

KHS Girls Advance

Kingston High girls hit steadily behind Barb Myers' six-hit pitching to defeat Pine Plains, 10-4, and advance to the quarter final round of the Section One softball tournament Friday against Yorktown at Yorktown.

Myers permitted only six hits and had only one rocky inning — the third when the Plains scored three times. Two double plays eased her out of other jams.

Dianna Baker and June Miller led Kingston's 12-hit attack with singledouble combinations. Ertha Burris had a pair of singles or the winners.

Lee Buddick and Sheree Hall each had two singles for Pine Plains.

Roth Assumes Bowling Lead

DOWNY, Calif. (UPI) — Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., won seven of his eight match games Thursday night to move into first place at the start of head to head competition in the $75,000 National Championship of the Professional Bowlers Association.

The 24 semifinalists chosen earlier Thursday after 32 games had been played will be trimmed to five finalists at the end of match play Friday. Those five will meet Saturday in the nationally televised tournament wind-up.

Roth, who ranked 95th on the list after the tournament's eight-game opening block last Monday, moved to the top with a total pinfall of 1,905. That gave him a gross pinfall, counting bonus points, of 8,922, 42 higher than Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash.

Dave Davis of Atlanta, shooting for his third straight tour victory and the leader at the start of match play, won four of his first five games but lost his final three to fall 129 behind the leader.

Rounding out the top five were Jay Robinson of Los Angeles and Larry Laub of San Francisco, 275 and 330 pins behind Roth.

PSC Okays Telephone Rate Hike

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A Public Service Commission examiner Thursday recommended that the New York Telephone Co. be granted a $50.4 million rate increase covering several types of special service.

Examiner Lawrence A. Gollomp said the proposed rate hikes would affect only about 330,000 of the utility's 6 million customers.

Gollomp said the rates for key equipment, private lines and tie line terminals "are not compensatory" and are currently being subsidized by other customers.

Under Gollomp's recommendations, rates for key equipment—telephones with buttons to allow use of more than one line with a single phone—would be raised $45 million.

Rates for private leased lines would be hiked $1.0 million and tie line terminal charges would be jumped $4.4 million.

The examiner said it would result in a 2.5 per cent increase in the company's revenues.

Communists Open Fire

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The Communist Pathet Lao opened fire on thousands of Meo hilltribesmen fleeing southward toward Vientiane, government officials reported today. It was the first outbreak of violence during the Communist takeover of the country.

The removal of U.S. officials and dependents from the country, meanwhile, passed the 80 percent mark. American spokesman said the number of U.S. official personnel in Laos dropped to 162 and that Washington has urged further thinning.

Reports from the Long Cheng area 90 miles north of Vientiane said the Meos, once part of a secret army funded by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, had demanded a meeting with government officials to end "exploitation" by the Communists.

The reports said the Meos claimed soldiers shot at them and forced them to sell livestock at substandard prices. Lane Pathammavong, a spokesman for the rightist delegation to the Joint Peace-keeping Commission, reported clashes with the hilltribesmen who were streaming toward Vientiane by the thousands and said that, "many Meo have been killed" in an area about 55 miles north of the capital.

Reliable reports from the scene indicated that at least five tribesmen were killed and about 30 wounded Thursday when Pathet Lao-controlled troops opened fire on a group of several hundred Meo who refused to obey their orders to return to their home area of north Laos.

UPI photographer Anant Chomchuen reported that today Pathet Lao troops were marching groups of Meo back toward the hills at gunpoint while others melted into the countryside off the highway to continue their trek toward the border with Thailand.

State Post For Primo

KINGSTON
Alderman Emilio A. Primo Jr. (d-Eighth Ward) has been appointed an inspector at Monticello Race World by the State Wagering Board, the Freeman learned today.

Primo will work the night shift at the racetrack at a per diem rate of $39.45, just over $10,000 a year. He was appointed to the job last week. Primo said he has no plans to resign his post as alderman due to his new job. He said he will be able to make arrangements to make Common Council meeting, which are at night.

Primo, 46, was originally elected to the Council in 1965 from the old Fourth Ward but was defeated when he ran for election in 1967 from the newly-reappointed Eighth Ward. He came back in 1968 and has been an alderman ever since.

He is currently chairman of the Council's Building and Supply Committee. He is also a member of the Laws and Rules Committee.

Koenig To Attend Session

KINGSTON
Mayor Francis R. Koenig will attend the 61st annual New York State Mayors Conference annual meeting beginning June 1 at Grossinger's.

Koenig will travel to the mayor's conference following the annual City Democratic Committee fund raising dinner at the Walnut Grove on Sunday night.

Guest speakers at the mayors' meeting will include DOT Commissioner Raymond Schuler, DEC Commissioner Ogden Reid and Secretary of State Mario Cuomo.

The annual meeting of mayors and other municipal officials brings together some 600 officials for the five-day event. Koenig will be accompanied by City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco.

Kazolias Calls For Spending Decrease

POUGHKEEPSIE
Satiro Kazolias, candidate for the Democratic nomination for county executive of Dutchess County, attacked the "looming" Dutchess County budget with its projected $14 million deficit, as just another example of Republican performance.

Kazolias said that by combining the $4 million deficit with the $12.3 million increase in spending over last year "you can understand why I call the Republicans 'big spenders,' especially when one remembers that the entire 1967 budget was only $12.6 million.

"Taxes are destroying the American economy and Dutchess County, while fortunate, will not be spared from the crunch," he said. "Only a fiscal, conservative county executive and an equally responsible county board can save the taxpayers of Dutchess County," he said.

Kazolias said that the fate that has befallen the City of Poughkeepsie taxpayers shows that one cannot spend oneself into prosperity. Reckless spending programs of the Republican controlled county government must be drastically curtailed, he concluded.

Guilty Verdict

KINGSTON
Deliberating for more than six hours Thursday, a nine-man, three-woman jury found Noel Mathew, also known as Noel Matthews, 36, of Springtown Road, New Paltz, guilty of possession of a dangerous weapon, a felony.

Mathew was arrested in May 1973 in the Kingston Plaza as he was allegedly carrying a loaded .22-caliber pistol. The charge carries a maximum sentence of four years in state prison.

Assistant District Attorney John Modjeska prosecuted the case. Attorney Robert Ricken represented Mathew.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who presided, set Aug. 13 as the date for sentencing.

Sinatra: Not A Gangster

LONDON (UPI) — Singer Frank Sinatra ended an eight-city European tour Thursday night by telling a London audience of 7,000, "I'm not a gangster."

The American crooner was referring to critical comments published by West German newspapers that prompted him to cancel a scheduled appearance in West Berlin.

"I'm not a super-gangster or any other kind of gangster," Sinatra told the sell-out crowd in Royal Albert Hall. Some listeners had paid as much as $72 for a seat.

"I don't understand the German press. I haven't done anything to them. I even say Gesundheit when I sneeze. I was disappointed..."

Then he reeled off a series of old Sinatra favorites that won wild applause from the audience and solid reviews from critics in today's newspapers.

The Mercedes-Benz 280.

This year some new American cars look surprisingly like it.

On the outside.

The original: the Mercedes-Benz 280. Inspiration for other manufacturers' imitation.

The "Look-alikes" are here...sedans whose shapes and sizes will remind you of our Mercedes-Benz 280. The shape may look the same, but that is where the similarity ends.

When you look beyond the new suits of clothes that the imitators are sporting, it's the same old story. Key elements like engines and suspension systems still have not changed.

Come in and see the original, the Mercedes-Benz 280 Sedan. Then arrange a test drive with us. We think you'll see why a Mercedes-Benz has become the standard other manufacturers measure by.

See the Mercedes-Benz at

For Saturday, May 31, 1975
 ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 You need to associate with gregarious types today. Mix with friends who have new ideas and are anxious to talk about them.
 TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 It's really to your benefit to clean up those little details that affect your work or career before you relax this weekend.

 GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Try to get together socially this evening with one who is interested in something you're working on. His ideas are more advanced than yours.
 CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Someone will tell you something in confidence today that you can gain from. Discuss it only with your family if you MUST talk about it.
 LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 You have a good idea regarding something affecting you and your mate. Take it easy. You'll later come up with something even better.
 VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Try to associate with persons whose careers are similar to yours. The exchange of information will be especially helpful to you.
 LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 You're the catalyst your group needs socially this evening. The party clicks right after you arrive.
 SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 If there's something you'd like to do for the family, do it secretly. They'll appreciate it later.
 SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-

Dec. 21) Chances are you'll be a bit restless today. Ease the tension by taking a short fun trip, forget business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 You're still in a cycle where you're likely to derive profit from situations that have little or no value to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Today you are in for some surprises, spur-of-the-moment happenings will be exciting and fun. Keep your schedule flexible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 A gift may be coming your way, either from a family member or a family contact. It's something unusual you can use in the home.

NOT NOW: (Q.) I have had my eyes on Chip for nearly a year. Last year he talked to me and teased me and was very friendly. This year he hasn't said zild to me.
 As far as I know, he doesn't have any other girl friend, and I certainly haven't started wearing bug repellent. He means too much to me to just say to heck with him! Please tell me what to do.—Hope Fading in New Jersey (A.) You give no sign that Chip has ever dated you or been anything more than a friend. He may have had a motion at first and changed his mind. Or he may have seen that you were more serious than he wanted to be.
 Whatever happened, it seems to be over with him. You would be wise to accept reality and start looking in some other direction.

ONE TIME: (Q.) Angela is the most beautiful girl in the world. I am in love with her. This is how it happened. I was at the hospital and my aunt, who is a teacher, introduced me to Angela. She is one of my aunt's students.

We talked a half hour and got to know each other. I know I love her. But my problem is that I am black and she isn't. Should I call her and tell her of my feelings, or should I wait until we meet again, which may be never? Please help me.—Black in Texas

(A.) A person does not love in 30 minutes. It takes longer. This is true no matter what the color of the person or the person's new friend.

Call Angla on the phone and talk to her as a friend. It may be that she and her family can be friendly with you. It may be that they can't. Do not try to get all the answers in one phone call. Be calm, and patient. Try to win Angela first as a friend. If love is possible, there will be time for that later.

We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.

South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly lost a spade finesse. West led a second heart. South won, played dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two tricks?

'High Marks' in Diplomacy for President

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Ford got high marks in diplomacy today from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, an old hand at the game.

"He really has taken hold of the decision making in foreign policy in a very strong way," said Kissinger as Ford wound up meetings with NATO leaders and prepared to fly to Spain Saturday for further work with U.S. allies in Europe.

"I think he'll be a very strong foreign policy president," Kissinger said. "He's very firm. He's very deliberate. He makes a decision and then he doesn't fret about it."

"The President doesn't attempt to negotiate all the fine points, and that's not a president's job," Kissinger said. "But he tries to get an assessment of the basic direction, to understand what he can and then to do it. And he finds these personal meetings very helpful."

Kissinger also said in an NBC television interview broadcast on the Today Show in the United States that Ford was "showing absolutely no strain" despite more than eight hours of meetings Thursday.

"I think he's getting a big kick out of it."

As for the NATO summit, Kissinger called it "the most constructive meeting of the Atlantic alliance that I have attended."

"I have never seen in the alliance such a spirit of cooperation and constructive attempts to solve our problems," he said. "It is as if recent events have brought home to everybody what the fundamental issues are and that they're now going to ask themselves where they are going rather than where they have been."

Earlier, Kissinger plucked up card after card down the 50-yard candlelit table Thursday night in search of his place at King Baudouin's dinner for 107 captains and kings of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

President Ford, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, the prime ministers of Denmark, Norway, Britain, Iceland and even Luxembourg had found their seat cards, and the fingers of the Belgian footmen in red silk knee breeches and braid began twitching as Kissinger vainly hunted his place at the King's table.

"I can't find my seat card," Kissinger announced. "But, well, I do believe you know who I am," and all the king's men burst into laughter. Kissinger had struck again.

He may be brilliant. Some say he is a genius. He may be a super diplomat, a prince of intellect, the most respected negotiator since Solomon. But what gives Kissinger his unique touch could well be his wit and the way he uses it.

In recent days he has used it thus:

—When President Suleyman Demirel of Turkey, a troubled and somber fellow, sat down for his Thursday meeting with Ford, the room was filled with an unhelpful stiffness until Kissinger broke the undiplomatic silence by saying loudly, "You know, I gained five pounds in Turkey last week."

Ford grinned and told Demirel that Kissinger always is alibing why he eats so much. The Turk was now smiling and the conference ended, Ford said, "very successfully."

—Canada's External Affairs Minister watched a bit wide-eyed as Kissinger dueled verbally with American newsmen. "You would be a paranoic too if you had these guys always following you, too," Kissinger said gleefully. The Canadian suddenly felt at ease.

—The Portuguese delegation headed by Prime Minister Vasco dos Santos Goncalves trooped into the room for their meeting with Ford, and the ice needed breaking once more. Kissinger startled the protocol officers by slapping the red leather sofa on which he was seated and commanding, "Come sit a Portuguese by me." The Portuguese who had been lined up as if for some sort of battle, grinned and sent their foreign minister to sit by Kissinger. "Good," said the Secretary of State. "This is just to confuse the situation."

In Ankara last week, Kissinger accepted a breakfast date with his ex-pupil, former Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit, whom he wanted to win over to a U.S. position on Cyprus bargaining. Ecevit rose at 5 a.m. and labored for nearly three hours clearing the bricks and rubble from the front yard of his newly built home to prepare for Kissinger's coming and in the last few minutes bathed and changed into fresh clothes.

Minutes later over sesame seed rolls and jam provided by his former Harvard University student, Kissinger laid out his proposal. Ecevit said no. But Kissinger could only smile, for not too many of his partners in power shovel refuse to make things nice for him.

United States Caught in Diplomatic Crossfire

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The United States has been caught in a diplomatic crossfire between Greece and Turkey over a solution to the Cyprus crisis.

The Greek and Turkish foreign ministers agreed to meet today to discuss the issue, but the positions of the two North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies remained far apart.

Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis told President Ford Thursday failure to settle the conflict might lead to war in the Aegean Sea and "internal complications" in Greece.

Turkish Premier Suleiman Demirel turned down proposals for a "package deal" in which Turkey would compromise on Cyprus in return for Greek concessions on disputed areas of the Aegean.

Caramanlis and Demirel met individually with Ford for 80 minutes each Thursday at the U.S. embassy residence in Brussels. Greek and Turkish officials later gave a rundown of the discussions.

Aides said Caramanlis was "extremely satisfied" with the talks, but Demirel felt U.S. attempts to mediate the dispute would only delay a settlement.

U.S. officials said Ford urged the two leaders to settle the Cyprus issue through negotiations but offered no proposals for a solution.

The two prime ministers were scheduled to meet Saturday in the first talks between leaders of the two nations since a Greek-led coup on Cyprus precipitated last summer's Turkish invasion of the island.

Turkish forces captured the prosperous northern 40 percent of Cyprus during the warfare and the Turkish

Cypriot minority later declared an autonomous "federated state" in the occupied region.

The Greek Cypriot majority rejected the move, called for the withdrawal of Turkish occupation troops and demanded the re-establishment of a single state under Archbishop Makarios, the Greek Cypriot president.

A U.S. spokesman said Ford adopted an even-handed approach in his talks with Caramanlis and Demirel but, "You cannot say progress was made in these meetings."

Secretary of State Henry

Kissinger said the United States is "trying to contribute to a framework that will contribute to the parties moving toward a solution of the disputes between them."

Killing Ends Cease-Fire

BEIRUT (UPI) — A sniper shot and killed a shop assistant in downtown Beirut today, touching off new gun battles in the streets thought to be returning to normal after eight days of civil strife. Shops and business offices hurriedly closed.

The shooting broke the shaky cease-fire established Wednesday with the appointment of Moslem politician Rashid Karami as premier-designate.

The shop worker died outside his store in Debbas Square, a stronghold of the right-wing Phalangist party. Rightist militiamen poured into the streets to hunt the killer.

The killing raised the casualty toll in eight days of street fighting between Phalangist militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas to 104 dead and 265 wounded.

Life had returned to normal in most parts of the capital but many of the worst affected suburban battlegrounds remained deserted.

Rashid's efforts to form a government of national unity ran into trouble today over leftist calls for the exclusion of the Phalangists from his cabinet.

Brig. Gen. Said Nasrallah,

Interior Minister in the outgoing military government which held office for barely three days, said agreement had been reached to set up "demilitarized zones" between Palestinian and Phalangist forces.

Nasrallah said the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas would form joint patrols to police the cease-fire in the suburban areas of Chiah, Sin el Fil, Dikwaneh, Karantina and Maslakh.

Betty Ford Having a Ball

BRUSSELS (UPI) — In her first three days of foreign travel as First Lady, Betty Ford has mixed social engagements, culture and an unscheduled window shopping stroll through downtown Brussels. She seemed to enjoy it all.

Thursday night she watched from the flower bedecked Royal Box one of the final sessions of the renowned Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition. Two of the 12 finalists, Russian pianist Sergei Yuckkevich and American Larry Graham, each played an unpublished concerto by Belgian composer Jef Maes and two other pieces.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Ford and the wives of other NATO leaders dined with Queen Fabiola and was to lunch later today at the home of NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns.

The First Lady, in a long pink gown and fur cape, and the Queen, wearing a gold cloth gown and purple and gold cloak, chatted and smiled during intermissions.

They were accompanied by Princess Paola of Belgium, and the wives of U.S. Ambassador to Belgium Leonard Firestone, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and other NATO ministers.

During the day, Mrs. Ford took off on an informal stroll through central Brussels with Mrs. Firestone.

The First Lady, in a bright red dress and pale blue cape, slowly walked through one of the city's fashionable shopping arcades, down the narrow streets of the restaurants and Bohemian district and through the flower market in the medieval Grand Place.

She paused at shop windows and looked around in an antique store but didn't buy anything.

"I'm window shopping," she told one proprietor.

Mrs. Ford also drew crowds of Belgians and Americans who called out good wishes to her and applauded. Some even pushed through security guards to greet her individually.

From the Grand Place Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Firestone rode in a motorcade to the exclusive Villa Lorraine restaurant for a luncheon at the edge of a forest south of the city.
